(prŏ·spek'·tŭs), n. A prelude or overview envisioning the anticipated goals of a forthcoming venture.

backlog 1971 | david lipscomb college | nashville, tennessee

One year is a minute, but vital fragment in the procession of the Family of Man. Each brother's touch molds the destiny of humanity.

168644

To touch life—to touch understanding, compassion, to watch each day's ebb and flow, to embrace thorns and stones, petals and warm earth—to know this is . . .

To touch the world—to watch faces frustrated, ecstatic, proud and poor, to look at these faces with reason, with empathy, questioning each returning gaze—to know this is . . .

To touch people—to watch their growth, share their lives and realize their humanity, to love them in spite of it, to be molded by the force of their spirit—to know this is . . .

To touch time—to know its infinity, to feel its immediacy, to use it, to serve it, to live with its power, and to realize its futility—to know this is . . .

To touch the soul—to partake of its struggle and agony, to watch it unfold like petals, falter and begin again, to know that God created it, loves it, and nourishes it—to know this is . . .

To touch dreams—to touch with your fingers the timeless body of your visions, to find the treasure of your infinite depths, to reach out and grasp their substance—to know this is . . .

McRay, Associate Professor; Carroll B. Ellis, Professor; Mack Wayne Craig, Dean; Rodney E. Cloud, Instructor; John T. Willis, Professor; J. Leo Snow, Assistant Professor.

Bible

Reaching out to touch the hand of God, wise men
of great learning and courage teach and ask that others reach out to find the will of God.

Here, daily, a man and a woman may share the gift of finding the way to walk with God.

Men of great compassion live and show what it is to find the heart of God.

This is all there is here
—a world of God, His Word, laid open to all.

Religious Education

If a child should ask me,
"Where is God? How shall I find Him?"

And if his father should want to know,
"Who is God?
"Where can I meet Him?"

Everyday, in every way,
a man or child must learn.

And how to teach and where to teach and what to teach
I must know.

Because to teach of God is Love.

Education

Education.
The very soul of life
is learning and learning how to teach others to learn.

Not so very long ago
a humble, sinewy carpenter from Galilee stepped into the lives of men and taught them the Truth and now it makes them
Free.

Today we learn how to do the same, only with reading, and writing,
and algebra.

So there you are—in front of a classroom full of minds with an impressive title trying to impress and the only thing you can think of is how He would do it.

Left to right: Jack Norwood, Assistant Instructor; Peggy Roberts, Assistant Instructor; Gary Davis, Assistant Instructor; Betty Webster, Instructor; S. Eugene Boyce, Professor; James Ward, Associate Professor; Duane R. Slaughter, Chairman, Professor; Michael T. Clark, Instructor; Kenneth L. Dugan, Assistant Professor; Thomas E. Hanvey, Associate Professor; Russ Combs, Assistant Instructor. Absent: Stephen Barron, Assistant Instructor.

Physical Education

Listen, brother
 —some people are dying and are hungry,
 and you're just running around in circles, running, jumping, bouncing.

Is that what P.E. is all about?
 Why?

But, there's more.
 There's development.

You learn something about yourself.
 You lose and learn.
 You win and learn.

You strain—ache—sprain—read the sports page and visit Merry-Go-Boy's grave.

You grow socially, mentally,
 physically.

Listen, brother,
 It takes a grown person
 to serve the hungry
 —and the dying.

Home Economics

Boil, bake, baste, pin
—the intangibles, the evidence of an enormous task
—the molding of a quiet greatness.

To build a home in a house, to shape a personality from an infant and promise, to be a companion (and helper);
thus to grow.

Skills also become vocation as well as avocation.

Careers in the home sciences begin in future bride's classes.

The house (managing or being managed by it?)
—luncheons and white blouses and dark skirts —experimentation, discovery
—all lead to confidence—in one's ability to build.

Seated: Margaret Carter, Chairman, Professor; Alice King, Instructor. Standing: Marilyn Burgess, Instructor; June Gingles, Instructor.

Speech

And he opened his mouth . . .
 and he knew how to say a thing,
 and men got the message and today what the people hear or decide to hear or to believe depends mostly on how a thing is said
 —on expression.

Transferring an idea from one mind to another (whether the idea be God or English lit or political reform or entertainment) involves speech.

Music

Practice rooms are crowded with men and women getting acquainted with curious creations called instruments, turning them from meaningless, lifeless wood and metal and strings into animate, ordered voices of beauty.

Chopin Mazurkas,
A Cappella tours
With Brahms, Bach, and Barber
Riding along in buses
With us as they Have ridden immemorally with
The hearts of others.

Ensembles disassemble; Chorales disintegrate with Time,
but hearts who've known here the magic ship
Music
Go sailing on Still singing.

Seated: Frances H. Hill, Associate Professor. Standing, left to right: Jerry J. Jennings, Instructor; Travis A. Cox, Assistant Professor; Lawrence E. McCommas, Acting Chairman, Instructor; Gerald L. Moore, Assistant Professor; Benford H. Masterson, Assistant Professor.

Art

To create the beautiful . . . to imitate the power of God in molding, painting, sculpting, capturing the image . . . this is art.

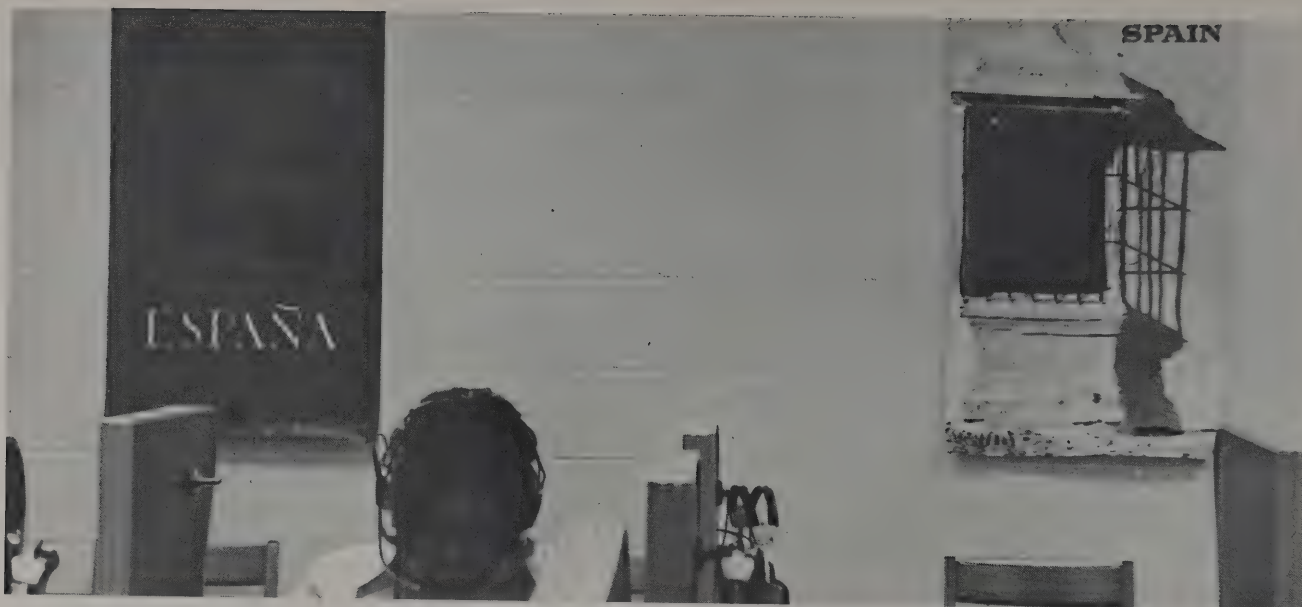

Mastering a skill but also cultivating a talent and using one's talents in a concrete fashion is art.

To those students caught up in this effort getting ready for their first art show, stretching their imaginations, developing their silk screening lab, with india ink on their sleeves, acrylics on their faces, glue on their fingers, and the beautiful on their minds. . . the world is their clay: struggling, searching, lifting, hoping to find . . . art.

Left to right: Rudy Sanders, Instructor; John C. Hutcheson, Chairman, Assistant Professor; Dawn Whitelaw, Assistant Instructor.

To speak to a man with his own mind is a great thing, but to speak with a man in the language of his youth is to know him and to share.

A voice to guide the reteaching of a man's tongue requires energy and patience and many years.

A new department with increased offerings, but still the voices teach how to speak.

To teach one to speak so that a friend might understand
—this is a lasting thing.

Modern Languages

Left to right: David Howard, Instructor;
Donald R. Taylor, Assistant Instructor;
Ruth H. Campbell, Instructor; B. Don Finto, Chairman, Assistant Professor;
Gladys E. Gooch, Assistant Professor.

English

Remember, long ago,
when the freshman forgot to ask how one writes 600 words on the similes in a 50-word poem, or when the sophomore forgot to explore the logic behind,
"Read it because it's 'Great' "?

Remember, not so long ago,
how the freshest freshman and the most sophomoric sophomore cried for relevance?

Those men and women who study words,
beautiful and ugly,
know that not too long from now
the future will show
the relevance of relevance,
the reality of aestheticism, and the stark necessity of civilized communication.

Business Administration

Working to improve an economic world built on the complexities of finance.

Clicking typewriters,
the audible sound of progress,
the tension of the CPA exam,
in preparation for a fast world,
a dollars and cents world,
a combination world of human minds,
of human interrelation,
of human necessities and commodities.

Motivation applied to a numbers psyche spurs the decisions, the intelligence, that lead to Success.

If you asked me
years from now
how to solve a problem
by the quadratic formula or by simultaneous equations, you might have me in a mathematical bind.

If you asked me
when, in the long ago of my fresh college years,
my math class met in spring,
I'd remember in a flash that I forced myself to class at 4:00, body without mind.

Somehow, even now though,
I have to believe that in studying math
I am honing a part of me that sees analytically and that will see, with gratitude, something around the corner from The Answer—
the beauty of exactitude.

Mathematics

Physics

Pieces of chalk hurled through the air spinning madly
to demonstrate centrifugal force, keeping Fletcher's renowned trolley on its track;
amplifiers, expensive  $e/m$  tubes, exact 3-D drawings
—all are efforts of the body. And mixed with them are the efforts of the mind.

The mental —whether it is hours of deep thought (Newtonian in origin)
or an extension of that thought in machinery (computers, mass spectrometers)
—one finds it necessary to delve into the secrets of the universe
to make a journey to the researcher's Mecca (Berkeley).
All to discover the physical secrets of Nature's order.

Left to right: C. Franklin Kyle, Assistant Professor; Ralph W. Nance, Assistant Professor; W. Everette Hunt, Chairman, Professor; W. Ralph Butler, Assistant Professor. Absent: James G. Barrett, Special Instructor.

Left to right: James L. Wood, Associate Professor; John W. Dawson, Associate Professor; Paul B. Langford, Professor; John T. Netterville, Chairman, Professor; George E. Walden, Associate Professor; David O. Johnston, Professor; John C. Craig, Assistant Professor.

Chemistry

NMR, Organic, P-Chem., ACS., Bio., Qual. . .
 abbr'd names for phases of chemistry that
 S-T-R-E-T-C-H the mind
 (as well as the student).
 Stretching can be painful.

It begins with incomprehensible macromolecules,
 the odor of pyridine, Wilbert being out to lunch—and you've spilled your sample, shooting solutions into a gas chromatograph until 11:00
 —p.m.
 staring at a test, problem, confused, frustrated
 —but without stretching one cannot REACH.

And without reaching, man cannot reach more and without reaching more, man stops.
 This year's periodic charts,
 lubricating powders, small reaches contributing to chemistry and that ultimate understanding of new opportunities to serve man
 . . . and God.

Biology

Discovering life in a room of living monkeys, rats, mice, guinea pigs.

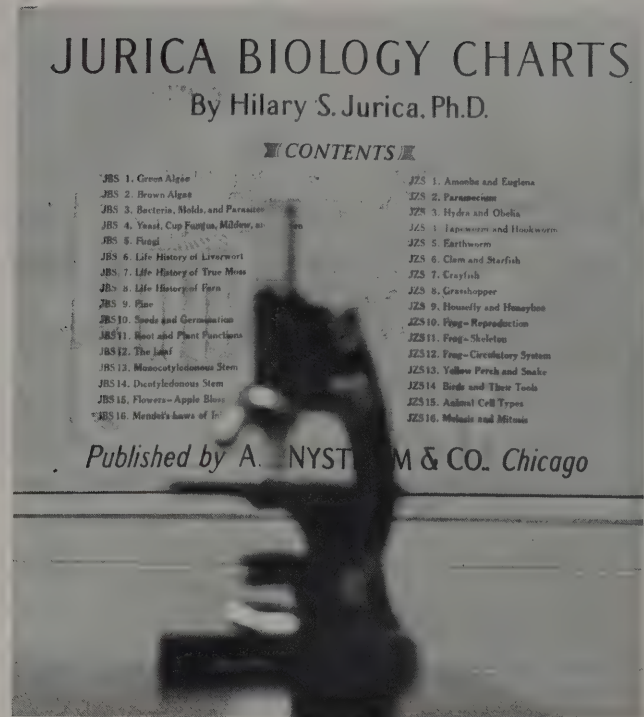

Examining life in an angel fish gliding through clear, shimmering water.

Observing life in cold, slithering snake movements and in rows of plants in rooftop greenhouses —some beautiful, some functional: this is life.

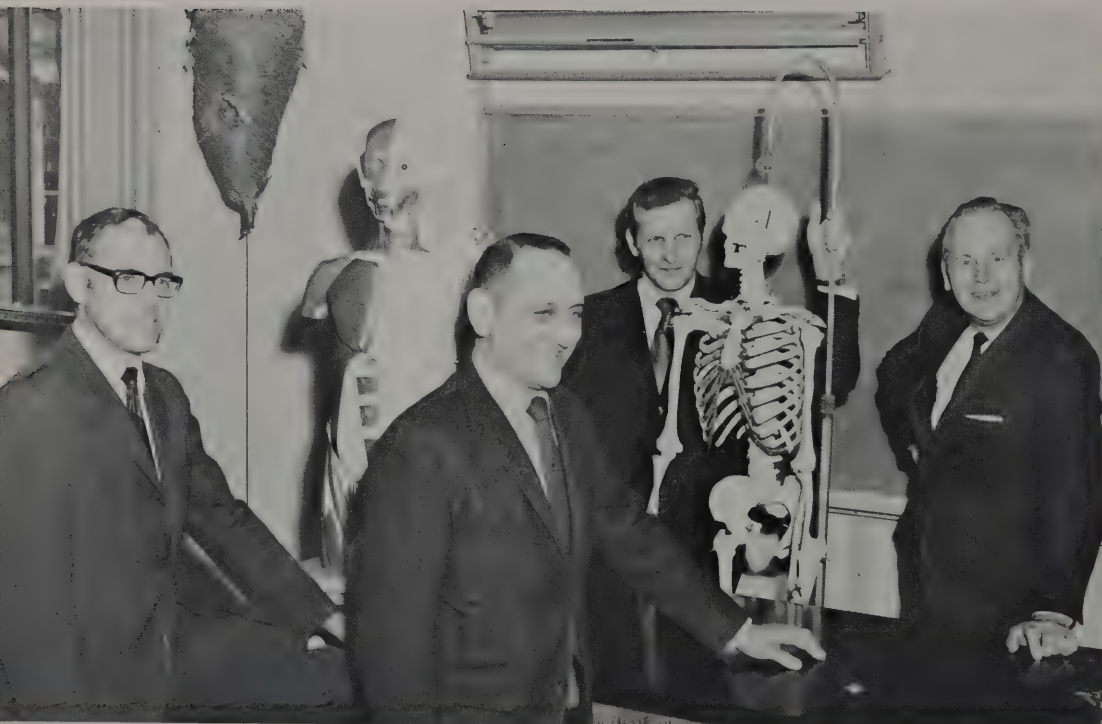

The squeamishness that rises while discovering a frog's brain, the awe and wonder of a pumping heart, creatures suspended in a sea of formaldehyde, a grinning human skeleton —all to be herpetologists, botanists, ichthyologists, geneticists, doctors.

All to discover values based on nature and God.

The end: —to curb the destruction of Life.

Psychology

Of all subjects I have invented,
I find myself
most fascinating;
for I love unrequitedly,
I hate illogically,
I hope blindly,
I dream unceasingly,
and I still die ungracefully.

While I'm here I find myself trying to discover why my brother stumbles off the road into a still,
dim,
unbounded meadow.
Today I light that meadow and lead my brother through the darkness back toward the road with my extended hand.

Maybe tomorrow
with God's help, I'll keep him even from stumbling.

Sociology

Building students, rebuilding a department, the emphasis falls on human relationships in a human world, enlightened social service in a troubled world, respect for the truth . . . individual expression
in a growing year.

Committees of the Sociological Society,
a survey executed and published,
AGAPE,
and
the search for elusive answers—

Probing into the depths of society, love,
prejudice,
community,
individual,
urbanization,
reaction,
“various and sundry phenomena,”

Because man lives with man.

Social Science

"Lest we forget. . ."
 . . . man has a usable past to build a workable future.

The world turns on      and on and on Yet lives of great men
 remind us:
 hopefully,
 Henry Clay would still rather be right than President.

Or William Jennings Bryan
     —"I shall not be crucified on a Cross of Gold."
 Losers both . . . or perhaps. . .

Alert to the past
 living vibrantly in the present and dedicated to the future:
 "Lest we forget. . ."

Honor Students

Bachelor of Ugliness

Service to others and quiet understanding of one's accomplishments seem to accurately characterize Tom Rutherford. A senior from Madison, Tennessee, Rutherford never makes one overly-conscious of his achievements. Yet, he is constantly on the go and usually, when the polls close, he winds up on the top of the heap among his fellow students.

Serving as president of Circle K, Rutherford led a club rich in leadership ability. Out of a group which has furnished the 14,000-man Circle K International organization with three International Trustees and one International President in the past three years, Rutherford was elected by his peers to lead them during 1970-71.

A history major, Rutherford plans to pursue a career in jurisprudence and will begin the study of law in the autumn of 1971 at one of several schools which have expressed an interest in his abilities. Rutherford was a member of Phi Alpha Theta history fraternity and was listed among "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

His selection as Bachelor of Ugliness is, of course, a natural indication of the esteem in which his colleagues view him. Intended as the top honor for a male Lipscomb graduate, the Bachelor of Ugliness is that one person who best incorporates the ideals of Christian manhood.

Miss Lipscomb

The attainment of high honors is certainly no stranger to SueAnn Deese. She has consistently, throughout her long and varied career as a Lipscomb student, been not only a top scholar, but also highly honored by her fellow students as well.

During her four years at Lipscomb High School, Miss Deese achieved the position of valedictorian of her class, edited the school's yearbook, and was selected as Miss Lipscomb.

Not one to be satisfied with having once achieved the top, she proceeded, after moving to the other side of the campus, to become secretary of the student body. In addition, Miss Deese served as world secretary of International Collegiate Civitan during the 1970-71 school year.

Listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," she is consistently a member of either the Honor Roll or Dean's List. Miss Deese was Associate Editor of the 1970 BACKLOG and was a consultant to the 1971 edition.

Miss Deese topped an outstanding collegiate career when she was named Miss Lipscomb of 1971 by her fellow students. The honor is bestowed each year upon the woman graduate who most nearly personifies to her colleagues the ideals of scholarly achievement, Christian character, and congeniality.

Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities

Each year, a committee of faculty members and students selects the thirty most outstanding members of the junior class and accords them the honor of being named as Lipscomb's representatives in the national publication, "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." They are chosen on the basis of their academic excellence, contributions to the school, and outstanding character traits.

Carolyn Sue Bainbridge (above) combined a study of home economics with a major in education to prepare herself as both a homemaker and a wage-earner. From Farmington, West Virginia, Miss Bainbridge served as president of Omega Chi social club, secretary of PAL, and consistently achieved membership on either the Honor Roll or Dean's List.

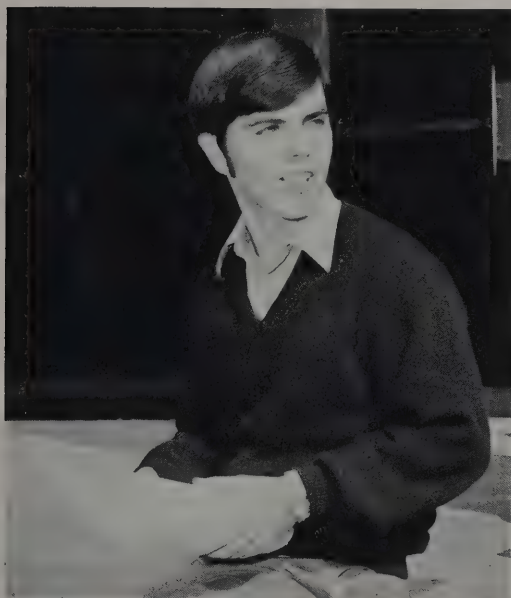

Steve Botts (above right) earned distinction both before and during his collegiate days with his speaking ability. During his first year here, he became the first freshman to win the Founder's Day Oratorical Contest. From Nashville, Botts also held membership in Pi Kappa Delta, national debate fraternity, and served as Vice-President of the Tennessee College Young Democrats.

Elizabeth Boyd (right), a native of Jasper, Tennessee, prepared herself for a career as an elementary school teacher while at Lipscomb. In addition, she was a member of SNEA, hospital singers, and the President's Student Council. An active member of Mission Emphasis, Miss Boyd was that organization's secretary-treasurer.

Linda Bumgardner (right) majored in psychology but probably should have studied journalism. She was a reporter for the Babbler during all four of her years here, the last two of which she served as Managing Editor. In addition, Miss Bumgardner was the president of Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalism fraternity, and secretary of the Press Club. From Pensacola, Florida, Miss Bumgardner will graduate in the top one per cent of her class.

Larry Caillouet (above) held membership in Tau Phi social club, Pi Kappa Delta, Circle K, and the President's Student Council. A speech major from Huntsville, Alabama, Caillouet was a frequent participant in intercollegiate forensics.

Neil Christy (above right), a native of Marion, Ohio, carried a double major in Biblical languages and speech. He held membership on the Board of Directors of Circle K and consistently placed himself on either the Honor Roll or Dean's List.

Janice Hoover Coone (right) combined a major in home economics with membership in the Home Economics Club. From Stantonville, Tennessee, she was also a member of K-Ettes. Another frequent honor student, Miss Coone was a member of the President's Student Council.

Anna Daniels (right) is best known for her extensive dramatic ability. Having appeared in numerous productions on the Lipscomb stage, Miss Daniels also held membership in Pi Kappa Delta and served as president of Gamma Lambda social club for two years. She is a speech major from Paintsville, Kentucky.

Jimmy Davis (above left) is from Lawrenceburg, Tennessee and served as president of Beta Tau social club. He majored in mathematics and participated frequently in intramural athletics. Davis also held membership in the President's Student Council.

Steve Deasy (above) was a member of SNEA, Music Educators National Conference, the DLC Concert Band, and served as vice-president of Beta Tau social club. He was a music education major and is a native of Portland, Tennessee.

Sue Ann Deese (left) proved to be one of those rare people who excelled in everything. A frequent member of the Dean's List while carrying a chemistry major, Miss Deese polled the double honor of being selected not only as student body secretary, but she was also elected Miss Lipscomb during her final year here. She is from Nashville.

Burton Elrod (left), from Centerville, Tennessee, majored in chemistry while holding membership in the American Chemical Society and serving on the Board of Directors of Delta Nu social club. Elrod was selected as the Most Valuable Back in the intramural football program for three consecutive years.

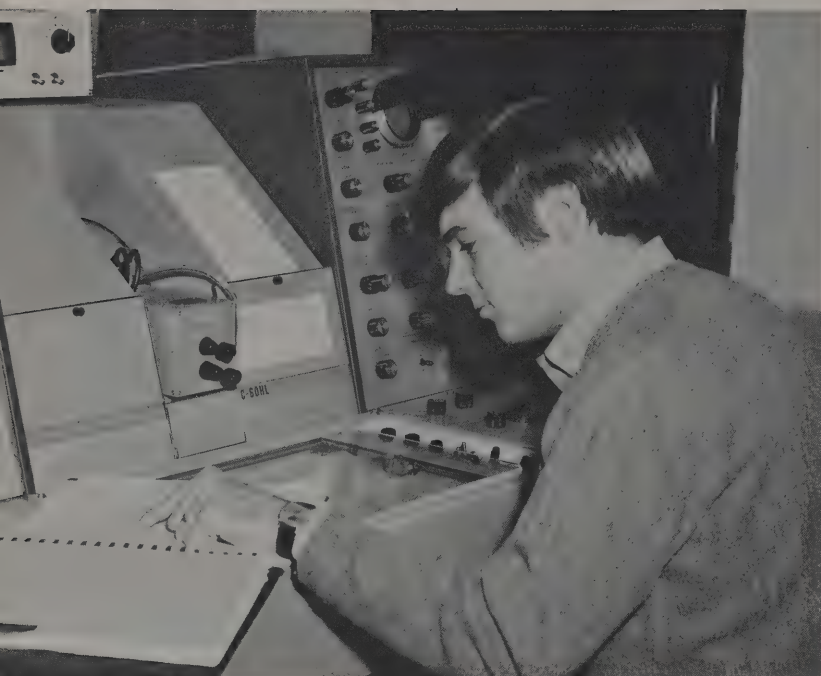

Paulette Donati (above right) was an elementary education major from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. She was a Bisonette, member of Civinettes, served as President of Sigma Phi social club and was elected secretary of the Interclub Council during her senior year. In addition, she was a member of the President's Student Council.

George Hicks (right) was, during different years, selected the outstanding chemistry and physics student in those departments. He is from Colonial Heights, Virginia and held membership in the Environment Club and Collegiate Civitan. Hicks was selected to membership in the President's Student Council.

Ronnie Hunter (left) plans a career in dentistry with the aid of a biology major. A Nashville native, he served as President of Delta Nu and was a member of Circle K and the American Chemical Society. Hunter was also active in intramural athletics.

Lynda Karnes (below), a December graduate, finished as salutatorian of her class. She was a member of the DLC band as well as the President's Student Council. Lynda was also active in various other campus organizations.

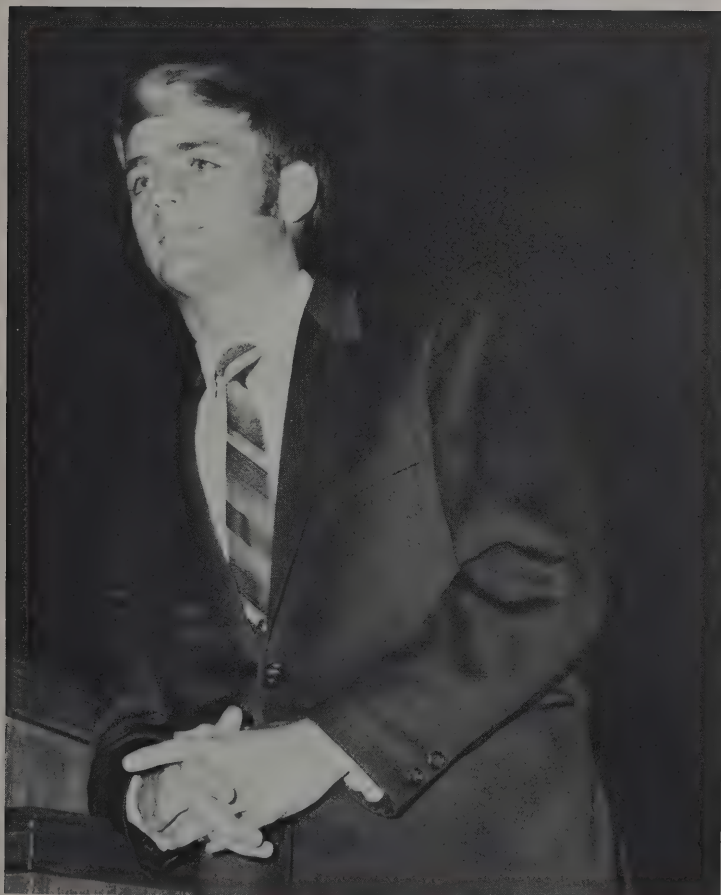

Gerald Jerkins (left) was a member of Delta Nu, Circle K, and Pi Delta Epsilon. From Nashville, Jerkins served as editor of the Babbler and was a member of the President's Student Council. He plans to pursue his study of chemistry by working toward a medical degree.

Paul Keckley (above), from Chattanooga, served as student body president while continuing to debate on the intercollegiate team and sing with the A Capella Chorus. A speech major, Keckley also was elected to serve as an International Trustee of Circle K.

Susie Key (above), an elementary education major, hails from Battle Creek, Michigan. A member of K-Ettes, she also held membership in Sigma Phi and the President's Student Council.

Tim Lavender (left), a transfer student from Ohio Valley Christian College, is at home speaking on any stage. A speech-education major, he held membership in Mission Emphasis as well as other campus organizations.

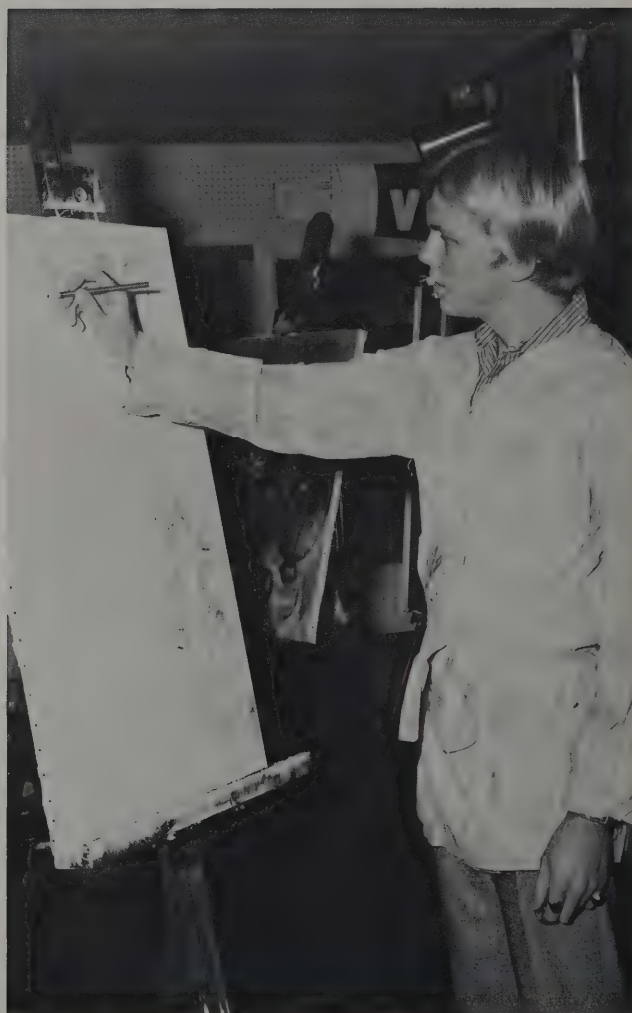

Mike McDonald (right), now in the graduate school of speech at the University of Illinois, is a native of Madison, Tennessee. He was a member of Chi Alpha Rho and the President's Student Council and served as president of Circle K.

Wesley Paine (below) was no stranger to the Lipscomb stage, regardless of the outfit. A speech major and a December graduate, this native of Atlanta was a member of the Footlighters and appeared in numerous dramatic productions. In addition, she was frequently on the Honor Roll and Dean's List.

Neil Rhoads (right) was comfortable with either art or music, as both were his majors. A Nashvillian, he was a member of Alpha Rho Tau art fraternity, Alpha Tau, and A Capella Chorus.

Tom Rutherford (above), achieved the honor of being selected by his fellow students as Lipscomb's Bachelor of Ugliness. A member of Beta Tau, he is a native of Nashville. Rutherford was president of the junior class and Circle K.

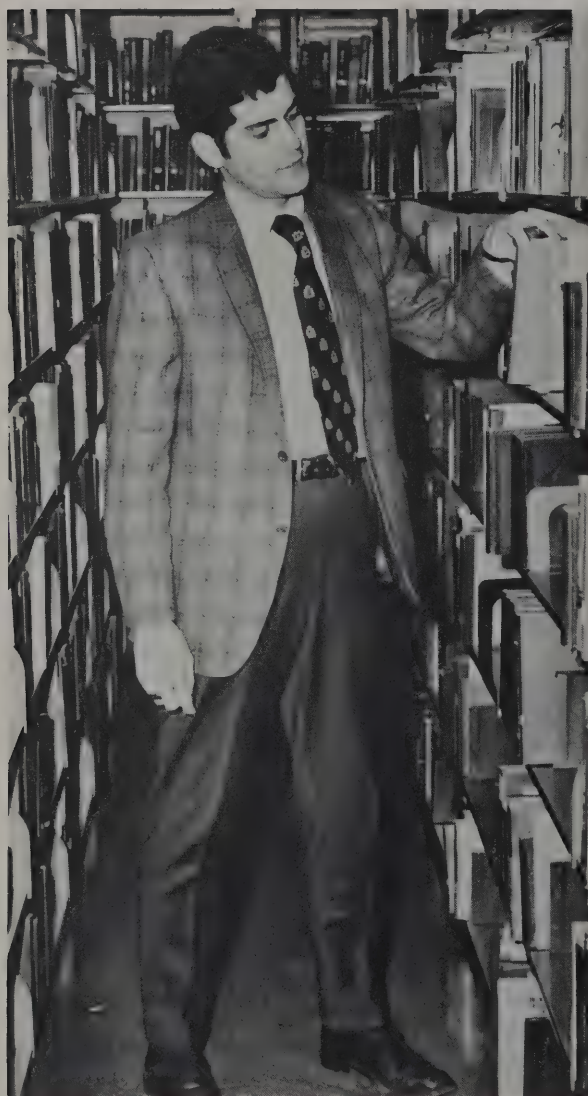

Ruth Ryan (right), a biology major, was a member of K-Ettes and served on the Babbler Staff. She was a member of the President's Student Council and graduated with a major in pre-medicine.

Vicki Porter Shaub (left), a December graduate, was the 1970 Miss Lipscomb. A native of Nashville, she was a biology major and a member of Kappa Chi. She regularly appeared on the Dean's List and Honor Roll.

Linda Sherwood (below), a psychology major from Madison, Indiana, could always be found around the BACKLOG office. A member of K-ettes and Bisonettes, she was also Associate Editor of the BACKLOG for two years.

David Switzer (left), a native of Paducah, Kentucky, was a member of Collegiate Civitan, Beta Tau, and was active in intramural sports. A math major, Switzer also held membership on the President's Student Council.

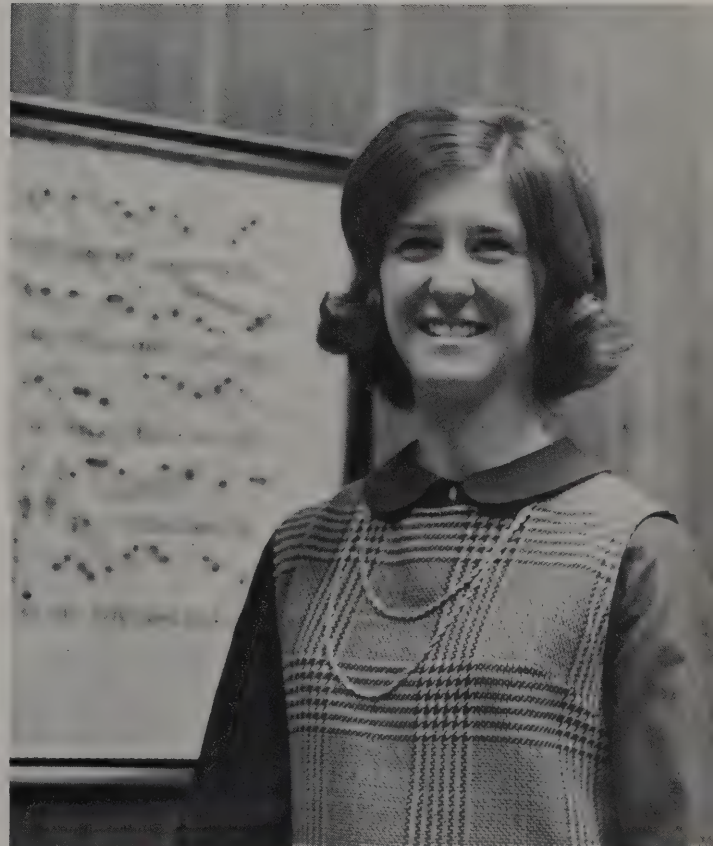

Wayne Tomlinson (left), a math major from Paducah, Kentucky, was a member of the Collegiate Civitan, Beta Tau, and before his marriage, was an assistant dormitory supervisor in High Rise.

Patricia Turney (lower left), from Nashville, was an elementary education major. She was a member of K-Ettes and Delta Sigma, as well as the Student National Education Association.

Karen Williams Gibbs (below), a native of Louisville, Kentucky, was also a member of SNEA. An elementary education major, this 1970 graduate was consistently on the honor roll.

Vice-President / Paulette Donati
Secretary / Paula Cyr
Treasurer / Susan Phelps

CIVITAN OFFICERS

President / Randal Burton
Vice-President / Bob Bradford
Secretary-Treasurer / Bill Wagner

Reaching out to both the school and the community, the Civinettes have taken the lead in a variety of service projects. In serving the college, the women's affiliate of Civitan International has co-sponsored blood drives, contributed to the establishment of a scholarship fund, ushered at various school functions, and rewarded the service of others by declaring them Citizen-of-the-Month.

By actively serving, Civinettes have demonstrated their firm belief in their International theme for the present year which states that one must : "Build Tomorrow Today."

CIVITAN

At Lipscomb, Civitan is not something one joins, it is something one does. This belief guides the local chapter of Civitan International in serving the community around the school and in trying to build the world into a better place.

Civitan projects for the year included visits to the Junior League for Crippled Children, collections for March of Dimes and Heart Fund, sponsorship of two campus blood drives, and responsibility for collecting area donations to the Cerebral Palsy Telethon.

Randal Burton, local chapter president, was elected to serve as the International President of Civitan International at its annual convention in Atlanta during the summer of 1970. Burton (right) directed the activities of several hundred Civitan chapters scattered around the world. His travels during the year took him coast-to-coast on behalf of Civitan.

K-ETTES

In only their second year of existence, the K-Ettes worked with their brother club, Circle K, in sponsoring a variety of projects designed to further the good of the community.

Established a year ago as the first women's auxiliary to Circle K International, the K-Ettes produced puppet shows for small children and shut-ins, sponsored an Easter egg hunt for underprivileged children, collected for numerous organizations, and contributed a number of other services to the school community.

CIRCLE K

Dedicated to serving their fellowmen, the men of Circle K united during 1970-71 to attack pressing issues of society ranging from drug abuse and juvenile delinquency to ecology and the generation gap.

Led by president Tom Rutherford and International Trustees Steve Raney and Paul Keckley, each member dedicated a minimum of twenty hours per quarter to such activities as recording textbooks for the blind, delivering food to shut-ins, and nearly fifteen other projects.

As the year prepared to close, the club hosted some 500 other Circle K men for the annual Tennessee-Kentucky District convention.

Brightening a Christmas for orphans, enlightening the student body with a directory, collecting for the March of Dimes, knocking on doors for the Heart Fund, inducting pledges . . . all this can be totaled on the credit side of the Delta Theta chapter of Phi Beta Lambda, a national women's business sorority.

Phi Beta Lambda provides its membership with the opportunity for growth and service through leadership development on the collegiate and community level. Active participation in Phi Beta Lambda is a positive step toward a more useful citizenship and an aggressive, but effective, leadership in business.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

OFFICERS

President / John Cagle

Executive Vice-President / Walker Dobbs

First Vice-President / George Hanlin

Second Vice-President / Les Tubb

The Delta Kappa chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi has been rated the top local collegiate affiliate in the nation for twelve consecutive years and the club's projects for the year show why.

Alpha Kappa Psi, a national business fraternity, participated in activities ranging from Christmas gifts for orphans, a regional convention, induction pledges, to the annual Sweetheart Banquet.

Led by President Johnny Cagle, the club hosted the regional Alpha Kappa Psi convention during the winter and was accorded the honor of being named the top local affiliate in the region.

Under the direction of Lawrence E. McCommas, the Lipscomb A Cappella Chorus launched out both into new areas of music and also into new areas of geography this year. The group performed pieces usually reserved for professional groups and added to their repertoire a number of highly moving dramatic monologues and ensemble pieces.

Undertaking two separate chorus tours for the first time ever in one year, the A Cappella singers went first to the south and midwestern portions of the country, performing in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, and Ohio during spring break. Later, the group moved farther to the north and performed in several northern states.

A CAPPELLA CHORUS

INTERCLUB COUNCIL

Members of the Interclub Council are: Doug Gates, Alpha Tau; Nancy Hammer, Delta Sigma; Mike Bradley, Omega Chi; Buddy Davis, Sigma Chi Delta; Janie Yates, Kappa Chi; Dixie Craig, Zeta Nu; Anita Conchin, Pi Delta; Mike O'Neal, Winter-Spring Student Body President; Jim Grimenstein, Kappa Theta; Tom Maust, Tau Phi; Paulette Donati, Sigma Phi; John Rigney, Sigma Iota Delta; Turney Stevens, Delta Nu; Linda Peek, Psi Alpha; Annette Sargent, Winter-Spring Student Body Secretary; Patty Minton, Lambda Psi; SueAnn Deese, Summer-Fall Student Body Secretary; Jenny Alexander, Phi Omega; Paul Keckley, Summer-Fall Student Body President; Susan Phelps, Gamma Lambda; and Doyle Richmond, Tau Phi.

The role of the Interclub Council in campus affairs is to coordinate all the activities of the various men's and women's social clubs. Tom Maust and Paulette Donati served as President and Secretary, respectively, of the Council during the 1970-71 school year. At least five new clubs were added to the total number of social clubs on campus, bringing more than 50% of the student body into one or another of the groups.

PRESIDENT'S STUDENT COUNCIL

Serving as a liaison between the student body and the administration, the President's Student Council meets once each quarter with the President of the college, Athens Clay Pullias, to discuss policies and developments of the school.

Each time the Council convenes, Mrs. Pullias gives a reception to honor the members of the group, all of whom have attained distinction in some phase of campus life.

BABBLER

Lee Maddux, Editor-in-Chief of the 1970 Babbler, led the weekly paper to its sixth consecutive All-American rating by the Association of Collegiate Presses. He was aided by Linda Bumgardner, Associate Editor, and Deby Samuels, Managing Editor.

A veteran of four years on the Babbler staff and three on the Lipscomb High award-winning paper, the Pony Express, Maddux directed his staff toward new efforts at objective, professional news reporting and analysis. The area of national politics was given special emphasis with weekly columns devoted to probing interpretative features of current events.

BACKLOG

A yearbook is not the easiest thing in the world to produce as Turney Stevens, a converted newspaperman, learned. Stevens, Editor of the 1971 BACKLOG, and Linda Sherwood, Associate Editor, led a staff composed of promising young journalists.

In producing the 1971 BACKLOG, Stevens strived to introduce new concepts into the field of yearbooks. He did away with the traditional sections and instead divided the book into two major sections, one devoted to people and the other to a chronological order of the year's events.

CHEERLEADERS

An integral part of any basketball team is the cheering squad, which does so much to give the hosts that fabled "home court" advantage. Spurring the crowd when the team sags, encouraging the ball players on the floor during a cold streak, planning and executing pep rallies to create pre-game excitement; all of these and more are a part of the job of the Bison Cheerleaders.

BISONETTES

Sixty-four strong, the Bisonettes march to drill cadence before each home basketball contest and lend their vocal support to the Bison hoopsters on the court. Selection to the Bisonettes is an honorary position bestowed on those girls from each of the four academic classes who are judged by their classmates as being the most enthusiastic, attractive, and capable supporters of the school's athletic teams.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

The Psychology club, under the direction of president Connie White, undertook during the course of the year to provide meaningful programs of wide interest at regular intervals. Striving to serve and educate the public as well as its own members, the club provided career guidance for those majors who chose to join. Becoming a member of the club aids immeasurably in gaining further insight into the field if one plans to go into professional psychology.

Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary fraternity of the dramatic arts, further evidenced its members' abilities during 1971 by undertaking a U.S.O.-sponsored tour of Greenland and Iceland and by producing superb performances of Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman. Membership in Alpha Psi Omega is selective and limited primarily to those who plan to work with the performing arts again after graduation.

ALPHA PSI OMEGA

PI DELTA EPSILON

Pi Delta Epsilon, led by Deby K. Samuels, is the national honorary fraternity for collegiate journalists. Composed of staff members of the two campus publications, the Babbler and BACK-LOG, the fraternity undertook a trip to Washington to attend the national convention and sponsored the annual Publications Workshop for high school journalists which was attended by more than 300 students from throughout the area.

Pi Kappa Delta, national speech fraternity, draws its membership from speech majors and collegiate debaters. Two of its members, John Tracy and Dewey Bain traveled to the national debate tournament in Houston after completing a successful season. While there, they captured fourth place in the national team competition out of more than 500 participating schools.

PI KAPPA DELTA

AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY

Composed primarily of chemistry majors, the American Chemical Society strives to better acquaint those who plan to make chemistry a profession the possibilities and pitfalls of both career work and graduate study. More than twenty-five strong, the ACS conducts programs, lectures, and workshops throughout the course of the year to further the club's objectives.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

Formed at the beginning of the present school year, the Lipscomb chapter of the American Institute of Biological Sciences attempts to guide those students who plan to go on to further study in the biological sciences. Career possibilities are discussed at each meeting where also a local or nationally prominent biologist is invited to address the group on matters of scholarly interest.

PHI ALPHA THETA

Phi Alpha Theta is the national honorary fraternity of history scholars. The majority of the club's members are majoring in either history or political science. Seminars and meetings are held on a regular basis at which papers are presented by various members of the group. Dr. Robert Hooper, chairman of the Department of History, sponsors the organization.

XANADU

Xanadu, deriving its name from the Coleridge poem, is the honorary English fraternity at Lipscomb. Formed at the beginning of fall quarter, 1970, the club supercedes the defunct English Club. Programs of literary interest are presented several times a quarter at which members perform or read papers of scholarly interest.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

PI EPSILON

STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

The Home Economics club is a career organization designed primarily for majors in the area. Activities of the club center around projects and programs which will increase the girls' awareness of new developments in the field and help them, eventually, to become better homemakers than classroom instruction alone would allow.

Pi Epsilon, national honorary fraternity for those majoring in physical education, is composed primarily of prospective coaches and instructors. Many of Pi Epsilon's members will later go on to careers on either the secondary or collegiate level.

Composed mainly of those planning to teach in elementary or secondary schools, the Student National Education Association plans and conducts workshops, programs, and other extracurricular activities designed to give the student greater insight into the profession he is planning to enter.

CONCERT BAND

Under the baton of newly-appointed maestro, Dr. Gerald Moore, the Lipscomb Band changed its name to the "Concert Orchestra" and launched out into an aggressive series of public appearance and performances this year. Although the total number of bandsmen was purposely limited to a smaller number than in the past, Dr. Moore attempted a more varied program. Ranging from classical pieces to swinging popular, the Orchestra made several appearances on campus and also furnished a pep band for all home basketball contests.

CHRISTIAN SERVICES COUNCIL

Love and Christ are inseparable entities and, to the member organizations of the Christian Services Council, this belief is the pathway to service. Formed as a means of co-ordinating the work of Lipscomb's various spiritually-oriented clubs, the Council explores means and methods of increasing the spiritual emphasis on the campus and in the community.

PAL, a euphemism for "Play-and-Learn," is a group of seventy-five students who give up their Saturday afternoons to tutor, teach, and, in general, communicate with ghetto children from the Edgehill Urban Renewal Area.

The Tennessee Orphan Home group goes, each Saturday morning, to the Home in Spring Hill, Tennessee, to play with children who would otherwise have little or no contact with anyone outside the school.

Mission Emphasis meets regularly to discuss materials and methods of current and prospective mission work throughout the world. The group is composed primarily of those interested in entering the mission field.

The Hospital Singers, one hundred strong, go each Friday evening to sing to, and visit with, indigent patients at Central State Hospital in Nashville.

Chi Alpha Rho, an honorary fraternity for ministers, and the DAC club, a group composed of those interested in ministering to the spiritual needs of the deaf and dumb, are also members of the Council.

The Brave New World Of the Rookie Collegian

Going away to college is a traumatic experience, particularly if you're an eighteen year old freshman leaving home for the first time. There are a lifetime's worth of possessions to transport, closed classes to fight for, and endless forms and lines to patiently endure.

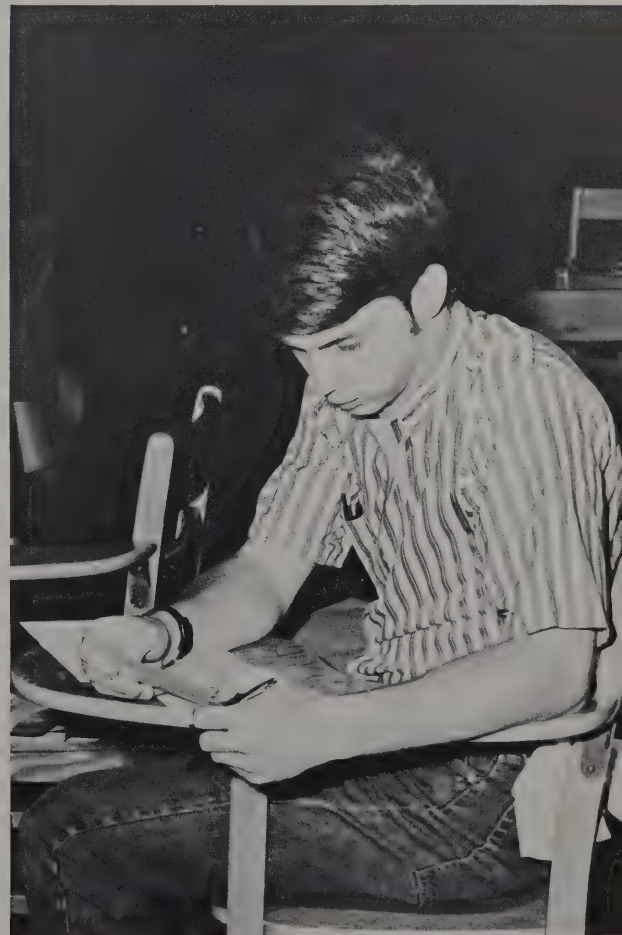

For college students, wherever they may be, September is a time of mixed emotions. The end of summer, the beginning of the regimentation of school, the loss of freedom, the start of new friendships and renewing of old ones—all these are wrapped up in what is affectionately known as . . . college.

Freshmen find the first week in a strange town and among a completely new set of people a harrowing, often scary, always lonesome experience to be endured. It is a time of endless lines, infinite forms, and continual surprise. There are new professors to meet, more freedom to cope with, a different home to become acquainted with, and most important of all, seven hundred other miserable, but brave, people to try to get to know.

The second and third and fourth, and for some fifth and sixth, times you go through that first week of school, it seems somehow old stuff. The monotony of the situation begins to get the best of even the most hardy soul. The lines don't seem to get any shorter, nor are there fewer forms to fill out. It's just that when you know what's coming, you learn to suffer in silence and make the best of the situation.

In all though, whether veteran or rookie, the opening of school signals the start of a new period in one's life, the challenge of new classes, and the stimulation of . . . A New Year.

One of the most popular games at the Freshman Mixer was "Red Rover" (above.) While many upperclassmen observed the adventures of the freshmen with condescending glee, others were content (below) to simply sit idly by and enjoy the beauty of Indian summer afternoons.

The Joy and Agony

For seven hundred green freshmen, the first week of school represented a fascinating, somewhat confusing new world. Coming from practically every state and several foreign countries, the rookies were greeted upon their arrival on the Lipscomb campus by an avalanche of activities designed to orient them into the life of a college student.

After a frenzied and rushed first day of meetings and counseling sessions, the frosh greeted the veterans of the student body for the first time at a Mixer designed to give all who attended the opportunity to meet and get to know the literally hundreds of new faces around the campus.

"Man, I felt like a nut doing all those silly things; but you know, it was really fun," remembered one newcomer.

Wheelbarrow races, Red Rover, Drop the

"There's got to be an easier way of getting from one place to another," agonized the two frosh girls above as they raced other rookies in a game of "Wheelbarrow." Paul Keckley and SueAnn Deese (below) planned and coordinated the Mixer for the seven hundred new freshmen.

of Being a 'Worm'

Handkerchief, and, of course, the grand finale—the shoe pile—were all part of being a Worm.

Student body officers, Paul Keckley and SueAnn Deese, planned the event to help as many freshmen as possible meet each other and their older colleagues.

"We especially wanted the freshmen to know each other by face and name because it's so important during the first week of school to know to whom to go to share your problems and loneliness," said Miss Deese.

Keckley, president of the student body, added, "Of course, we did want to help to acquaint the freshmen and upperclassmen. The games we planned, although silly, were great for just the very thing we were trying to accomplish—helping people to meet each other."

More than fifty freshmen turned out to participate in the Freshmen Personalities Show which drew an enthusiastic response from the audience.

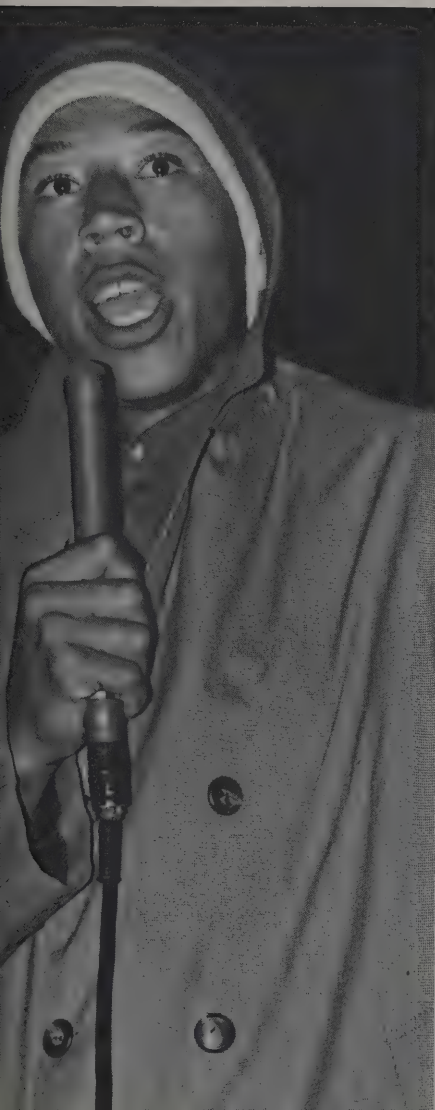

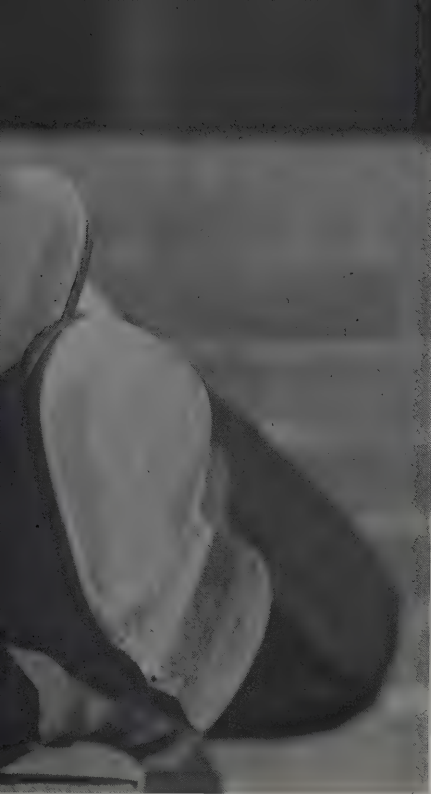

The first week in the new environment of college life meant different things to each freshman. Few knew exactly what they were doing, but then all were really too busy to notice.

Wednesday morning soon came and all the excitement of the previous evening's Mixer was lost in the confusion of the very first day of College classes. When the afternoon was over and there were no remaining teachers to make you stand and tell your hometown, the most impressive memory of the day had to be that there really wasn't so much difference between college and high school after all.

The week wore on and preparation for Friday's Freshmen Personalities Show was temporarily halted by Thursday's Faculty Firesides, at which each freshman was given the opportunity to go into a professor's home and spend the evening talking and getting acquainted. When the curtain finally rose on the Personalities Show, a large crowd of curious upperclassmen was on hand to scout the musical, thespian, and singing talents of the rookie class.

For the veterans the week was not really that different from many of the other weeks. It meant the beginning of another school year, perhaps one's last; it meant old friends and at least several hundred prospective new ones; but most of all it meant books, lectures, and getting up in time for that eight o'clock class you really didn't want to take in the first place.

The Frosh 'Do Their Thing'

For many of the freshmen, the first week of classes signaled the beginning of long hours in the classroom and lab (above), but for those who had been around a little longer (upper center), there were better places to spend those last, beautiful Indian Summer afternoons.

Founder's Day, Nature's Hues Mark Autumn

Founder's Day ceremonies, honoring David Lipscomb and James A. Harding, co-founders of the school, were held early in October on a crisp, clear Friday morning in McQuiddy Gymnasium. More than 2,700 students and faculty members attended the activities of the morning, during which President Pullias announced that fall quarter enrollment in the college was at all-time record levels.

October also provided less weighty matters to attend to, as well. The warm, late summer temperatures and brilliant blue skies continued to prevail over a campus rapidly shedding its heavy growth of green foliage and donning the sparkling gold, red, and yellow of . . . autumn.

President Athens Clay Pullias officially proclaimed the 1970-71 school year a reality at Founder's Day ceremonies in early October (above). Much of the remainder of October was devoted to wistful autumn afternoons studying under one of the colorful maple trees on campus (left) or long walks in one of the city's many parks (opposite, above).

Steve Hawkins and Perry Stites led a young, but mature, cross country team to an outstanding season against tough competition.

Harriers Hurry Toward Records

Returning nearly every letterman from the previous season, the Bison cross country squad, led by Ronnie Cope and Steve Hawkins, compiled an enviable record of 10-3 during the fall's competitions. Composed of sophomores, who a year ago were considered to be the most outstanding group of freshman runners ever recruited by the school, the squad went to the national meet in Kansas City to climax the season. Cope broke several individual records, and the team joined to help tear down at least two team standards.

Ronnie Cope proved to be the most outstanding individual performer on the squad as he set several individual records and was rewarded by taking first honors in numerous meets.

October Open House

It was the day when everyone spruced up for visits from friends and relatives. Dorms were cleaned, exhibits were put up, and all were on their best behavior. In short, the campus was put on display. It was Open House.

The main pastime for the visitors was the guided tours of the school's plant. The secret was to keep moving and avoid the lengthy tours of the physics department. Also, there was the highlight of the day, as guests listened to the A Cappella Singers on the steps of Alumni, while quietly munching their cookies and popping their punch cups.

The day was not complete until the dorms opened for inspection. Boys could visit the girls from 2-3 p.m., and girls in vice versa from 3-4 p.m.; but no one really kept track of the time.

It was a day of smiles and laughs, of fond remembrances and visions of the future, and of praise and criticism. Fortunately, there was much of the former, but very little of the latter.

The new Campus Store was officially opened on Open House Sunday (right). Exhibits by the various academic departments (above) gave visitors a comprehensive view of the scholastic programs of study at Lipscomb.

Refreshments, courtesy of the Patron's Association, were served throughout the afternoon at various locations on the campus.

The Lipscomb Concert Band premiering under the baton of Dr. Gerald Moore, was featured on the mall of the campus, along with the A Cappella Singers.

The Frantic Rush of Pledge Week

Pledging—that renowned and notorious initiation into college “life” had its beginning at the fall Rush Fair, October 3. Seven hundred curious freshmen crowded into McQuiddy to browse through social club exhibits, mingle with the upperclassmen, and meet the club members. Each of the nineteen clubs had carefully planned its rush exhibit in hopes of capturing the scanning eyes and considerate signatures of many freshmen. Cordial introductions, conversations, and activities at the fair led to more rush parties, more introductions, and finally the glorious invitation to join “the club” of the freshman’s dream. But this was only the beginning of social life for many students.

Pledging followed with all its excitement, its duties, and its humbling status. Throughout the year pledges were a welcome source of ready labor for Bison Day, Homecoming projects, and Singarama. Pledges always furnished excellent maid and laundry service, personal valet, car-care, and waiter services, not to mention various and sundry ego-booster antics for their superiors. Many freshmen minds and mouths were kept in high gear trying to remember and rattle off every active’s name, major, hometown, and favorite food within 60 seconds.

Pledging and social clubs mean many things to many people. Each club gave someone a friendship; it brought someone laughs and companionship; it provided a few freshmen with newfound humility; less importantly, it gave some actives a new importance; then, hopefully, it gave all a little more compassion for each other.

'The Clubs Gave Friendship, Laughs, A Hard Time, and Compassion for Others'

The whole process of joining a social club begins with a rush fair (left) early in the fall quarter and eventually culminates (right) in one type or another of initiation.

Although pledge duties are far from being confined strictly to shoe polishing, that chore (left) still remains one of the most popular. Tau Phi pledge Eddie Urrutia obliges active Les Pruitt.

Seniors Sweep Grid Competition

The senior squad, led by quarterback Jim Prince (above) compiled an undefeated record and again won the intramural football championship.

As it must be, the intramural tackle football program came to a close with its victors, its not so lucky, and those who said "Wait until next year."

The program was small and the recognition was almost null. Practices were long and tiring, and the men who tried knew what it was to sweat and grit their teeth in pain. Through all of the agony, one might ask himself, "Is it really worth it all?"

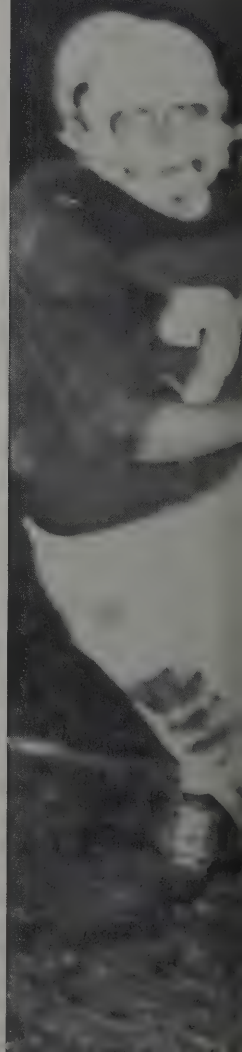

"Yeah, I think it's worth it," said a tired, but victorious, Jim Prince who piloted the seniors to their third straight championship. "I know it's nothing like big college football, but that's not what matters. When you're out there knocking heads you forget where you are; you just want to win, and isn't that what's most important!"

Competition, the unquenchable desire to come out on top—that is what causes a man to endure the pain necessary to achieve his goal.

Obviously, the seniors had a goal and were the victorious, the sophomores and freshmen were the not so lucky, and the juniors were the ones who realized the heartache of being second.

Although the caliber of play may not be as good as it would be if the school had an intercollegiate team, it is the spirit of competition which makes the game worthwhile.

There's No Business Like Show Business

Although no major dramatic production was scheduled by the Drama Department during the fall quarter, stage presentations were nevertheless plentiful.

Ray Walker, a member of the Jordanares quartet, presented a solo concert on the Alumni stage late in October. Walker's smooth blend of contemporary pop, rock, and soulful ballads provided the audience with the ticket to a highly entertaining two hours.

A campus screening of the Lipscomb stage show which toured Greenland and Iceland in November followed Walker by several weeks onto the stage. The first half of the U.S.O.-sponsored production was composed of a musical revue entitled "Music City, U.S.A." The last hour was a shortened production of the popular Broadway musical, "Pajama Game." The fourteen Lipscomb students who made the trip to the frozen north left the week after the show closed at Lipscomb and played to capacity audiences at army bases throughout the arctic.

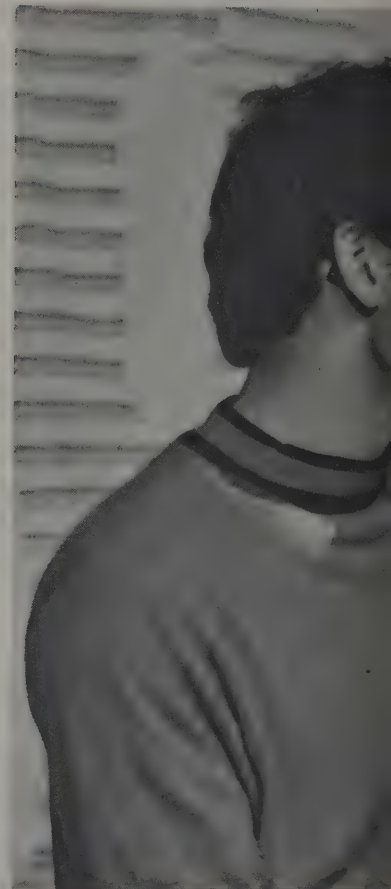

A Talent Show provided the campus with a look at some home-grown ability late in the quarter. Amanzo Jones, a freshman, copped top honors with a dramatic cutting. A variety of musical and singing acts took the remaining honors at the two-hour show.

Gary Jerkins, à la Chet Atkins, performed at the all-campus Talent Show in November and placed third with his picking and singing.

The Insiders made their campus debut at the Talent Show and were so warmly received that they have followed that appearance with numerous other city engagements.

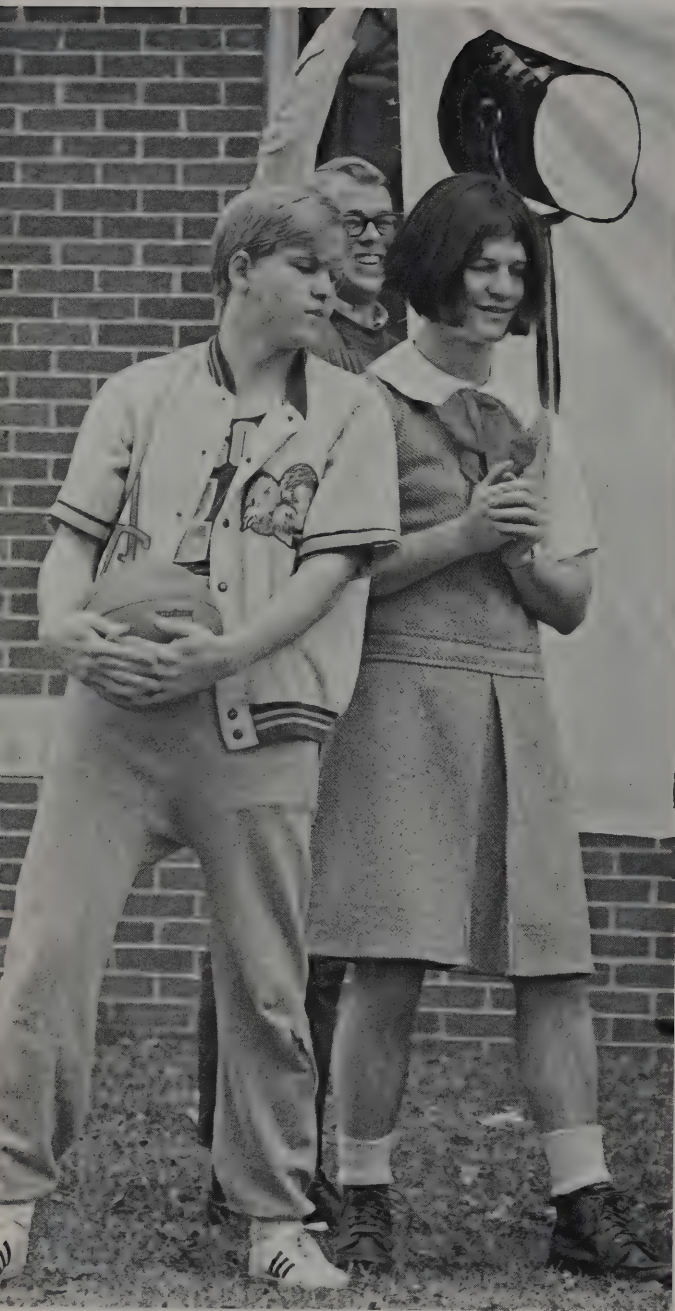

Ray Walker, popular singing star and member of the Jordanares quartet, was presented in concert by the student body officers over Parents Weekend in October.

Bison Day Signals 1970 Hoop Premier

"WHEREAS, the first home game of the 1970-71 season will be played with Harding College in McQuiddy Gymnasium on November 19, 1970, and

"WHEREAS, it is the privilege of every member of the student body and faculty of Lipscomb to lend support and encouragement to the Bisons,

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, Athens Clay Pulias, President of David Lipscomb College . . . proclaim this day . . . as Bison Day, and hearken to all . . . to take due note thereof . . . that the proper greeting to all and sundry on this Bison Day shall be: 'SUPPORT THE BISONS.'"

Betty Bisonette is saved again as Gary Keckley, hero of the Alpha Tau pep skit, arrives to save the day (above).

Alpha Tau's villain, alias Al Jackson, proved to be among the most popular of all the pep "characters" despite his "evil" reputation.

Bisons'"

Pi Delta "Squaws" (left) join the Bison cheerleaders (below) to kickoff the 1970-71 basketball campaign on Bison Day.

"This Bison Day is really a great thing. Excitement builds throughout the day, and by game time, the roof is about ready to come off. The spirit really helps us," said Rick Clark, Bison captain.

And Bison spirit was vividly displayed on November 19 as activities throughout the day anticipated the season's opening tip-off against the Harding College Bisons of Searcy, Ark.

Clowns, squaws, Bison "builders," human eggs, raggedy-anns, and various other costumed Bison supporters confronted a rather amazed and amused audience throughout the day's events which included pep rallies of large and small dimensions.

"I am expecting to see a lot of friends and familiar faces on the other side of the gym. I really want to beat that bunch from Harding. I don't know who is more worked up, the boys or me," said premiering Head Coach Mike Clark.

However, a beautiful Bison day, a highly spirited crowd, and the opening game to a promising season were climaxed with a letdown as the Bison vs. Bison battle resulted in defeat for Lipscomb, who later returned the loss in a Thanksgiving Day victory at Searcy.

Christmases At College Are Very Special Times

The best present of all, (above), is the gift of being able to go home during the Christmas break.

December 1970 arrived with all the usual, and for some, quite unusual accompaniments: "Ho, Ho, Ho," Christmas joy, No-Doze for final exam week, and "Pomp and Circumstance" for those lucky few who had come to the end of the grind.

Brightly lighted and lovingly decorated Christmas trees appeared everywhere to give the entire campus a North Pole appearance. Most Lipscomb students were as busy as Santa's proverbial helpers as they scurried to collect gifts for orphans, attend the endless list of Yule festivities, and between shopping and caroling, find at least some time to take those poorly timed Fall finals.

Governor Buford Ellington combined his final speech in office with the commencement address at the December Graduation ceremonies to give departing seniors a final, memorable evening on the Lipscomb campus.

Lipscomb's quarter system offers students the chance to graduate at the end of any of the four divisions of the school year. Left, December graduation annually attracts increasingly large numbers of graduates wishing to commence the next phase of their lives with the beginning of the new year.

Christmas, when you're away at college, is a very special time. New friends and even some old ones (left and above) brighten the season and add yuletide joy to everyone's heart.

The Wrench of Ice and Snow and Rain

As inevitably they must, the north winds begin to blow in earnest along about the first of January and the miserable, penetrating Tennessee winter rains commence, seeming to lapse the whole world into chilled despair.

Ugly, black snow clouds hang low on the horizon bringing their foreboding message of impending doom, only to dissolve into a brilliantly blue, and quite snowless, tomorrow.

Occasionally, though, just to prove to her huddling Earth-child that she does still remember, Mother Nature reveals her frosty beauty in all of its icy awe. The creation, once again, awakens to the purified innocence of its snowy elegance and all the hemisphere knows it is . . . Winter.

Although class dismissals almost never accompany the arrival of newly fallen snow, there is still an air of quiet exhilaration in even the most ardent ice hater when a coat of white sweeps in during the night to blanket the earth and transform an otherwise dismal winterscape into a glistening new world.

What else is there to do with newly-minted snow (left) but to throw it? The winter of 1971 provided few opportunities, however, to test one's pitching accuracy as the Nashville Weather Bureau recorded only six total inches of snowfall.

While snow is always the most visible evidence of winter, rain and grey, dismal days are just as much a part of the season.

All-American Rippetoe Fails to Offset Bison

New head coach Mike Clark leaned against the stark wall of now-folded bleachers and sighed, "It's height, that was the whole problem. We just didn't have the horses to clear those boards."

Perhaps no other statement could have summed up the season better. A better-than-average shooting team from the floor, the Bison hoopsters time and again saw their inability to rebound cost them an otherwise well-played ballgame. Finishing a disappointing season with an unenviable record of 8-14, Clark's charges did provide, however, more than their share of hair-raising finishes and outstanding individual performances to give their fans something, at least, to cheer about.

Ron Rippetoe, the highest scoring and probably the flashiest Bison ever, compiled a stupendous 30.4 scoring average and broke his own individual record for total points in a season by bucketing a Lipscomb high of 522. In addition he established the single game mark with a career high of 43 points against Southwestern. All-American honors and a high finish in both the NBA and ABA drafts rewarded Rippetoe for his toils on the court as the season closed.

The Bisons as a team were not, however, without their moments of glory. Recording one of their all-time outstanding victories, the team pulled off a stunning upset of tenth-ranked Transylvania in late January.

"We just didn't have the horses to clear those boards"

Bison varsity team members for 1970-71 were: David Martin, John Buford, Rick Clark, Paul Compton, Bob Burton, Roy Pate, Ron Rippetoe, Bruce Bowers, Farrell Gean, and Butch Stinson.

Inconsistency

Bruce Bowers was again the leading Bison rebounder. On a team desperately lacking in height, Bowers time and time again proved that he could jump with anybody.

New coach Mike Clark joined returning assistant mentor Jack Norwood in tutoring the Bisons this winter. Ecstasy reigned supreme at times during what eventually proved to be a long season, but at other times, the difficulty of the task was all too readily apparent.

Reigning as Lipscomb's 24th Homecoming Queen, Peggy Lynn, an Oak Ridge math major, was crowned in ceremonies preceding the basketball tilt with the University of the South on February 6.

Snowy Enchantment Greet Alumni

Women aren't the only creatures who have difficulty getting to all the hooks and buttons as Ronnie Jones, with the help of Gary Glover, learned.

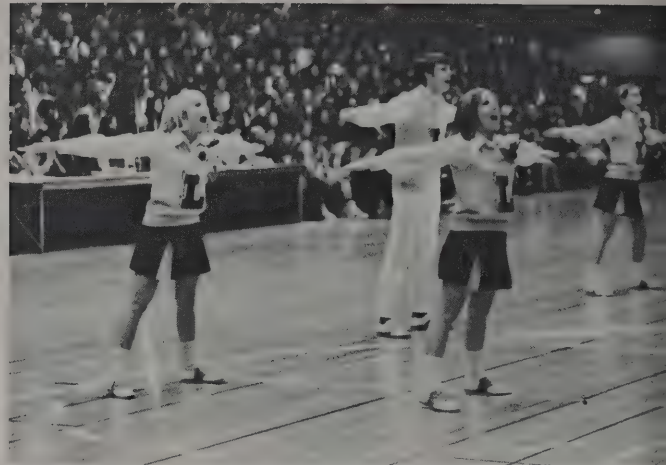

A wintry Enchanted Forest, complete with flocked trees and a resplendent throne room, welcomed students and alumni to the February Homecoming festivities. As a capacity crowd surveyed the captivating scene, ten pink-clad princesses, accompanied by their handsome escorts, prepared the way for the Queen, blonde and radiantly beautiful Miss Peggy Lynn.

Magic and fantasy reigned supreme as the elegant, regal tones of the Concert Orchestra, under the capable baton of Dr. Gerald Moore, announced the arrival of the Queen's retinue. Tokens of appreciation were presented to Miss Lynn by Rick Clark, captain of the Bison basketball squad, and Mike O'Neal, student body president.

LEFT MANY BREATHLESS, BUT ENTERTAINED

Homecoming, that magical day of superb beauty and fond remembrances, dawned on an early February Saturday aglow with brightly painted blue skies and warm, spring-like temperatures. A mad whirlwind of exciting events swiftly followed throughout the morning and afternoon, leaving many breathless, but entertained, by day's end.

For social club members, the proceedings began in the wee hours of the morning as the various projects were rushed to completion before the mid-morning judging. For alumni, however, the day began somewhat later and on a note of less hurried anticipation. Coffees, breakfasts, reunions, and luncheons served to kick off the activities of renewing old friendships and commencing new ones.

For a certain petite blonde native of Oak Ridge, the morning dawned as rather an unusual, often frantic, always exciting rush of last-minute preparation before the magic crowning hour of 2:30 arrived. Peggy Lynn, smiling fondly, remembers the day as one of unsurpassed thrills: "I think there were times when I wondered if I would make it through all the activities and excitement," she said. "But, just like a wedding, it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience and I obviously wouldn't trade it for anything."

The activities of the afternoon were, to all eyes, a full-blown spectacle of pageantry and excitement. First, the crowning of the Queen and the presentation of her attendants and their respective escorts. After a hurried evacuation of the Enchanted Forest set, a special Homecoming exhibition by the Bisonettes, the Lipscomb women's drill team, brought the crowd to fever pitch just before the tip-off of the Bison-University of the South conflict.

A disappointing, but rugged, first half of play was followed by an exhibition of gymnastics skill by Coach Tom Hanvey's nationally recognized team. The second half of the basketball game proved to be more fiercely fought, but equally as disappointing as the first half. When the final buzzer sounded, the Bisons had dropped a heart-breaking loss to Sewanee.

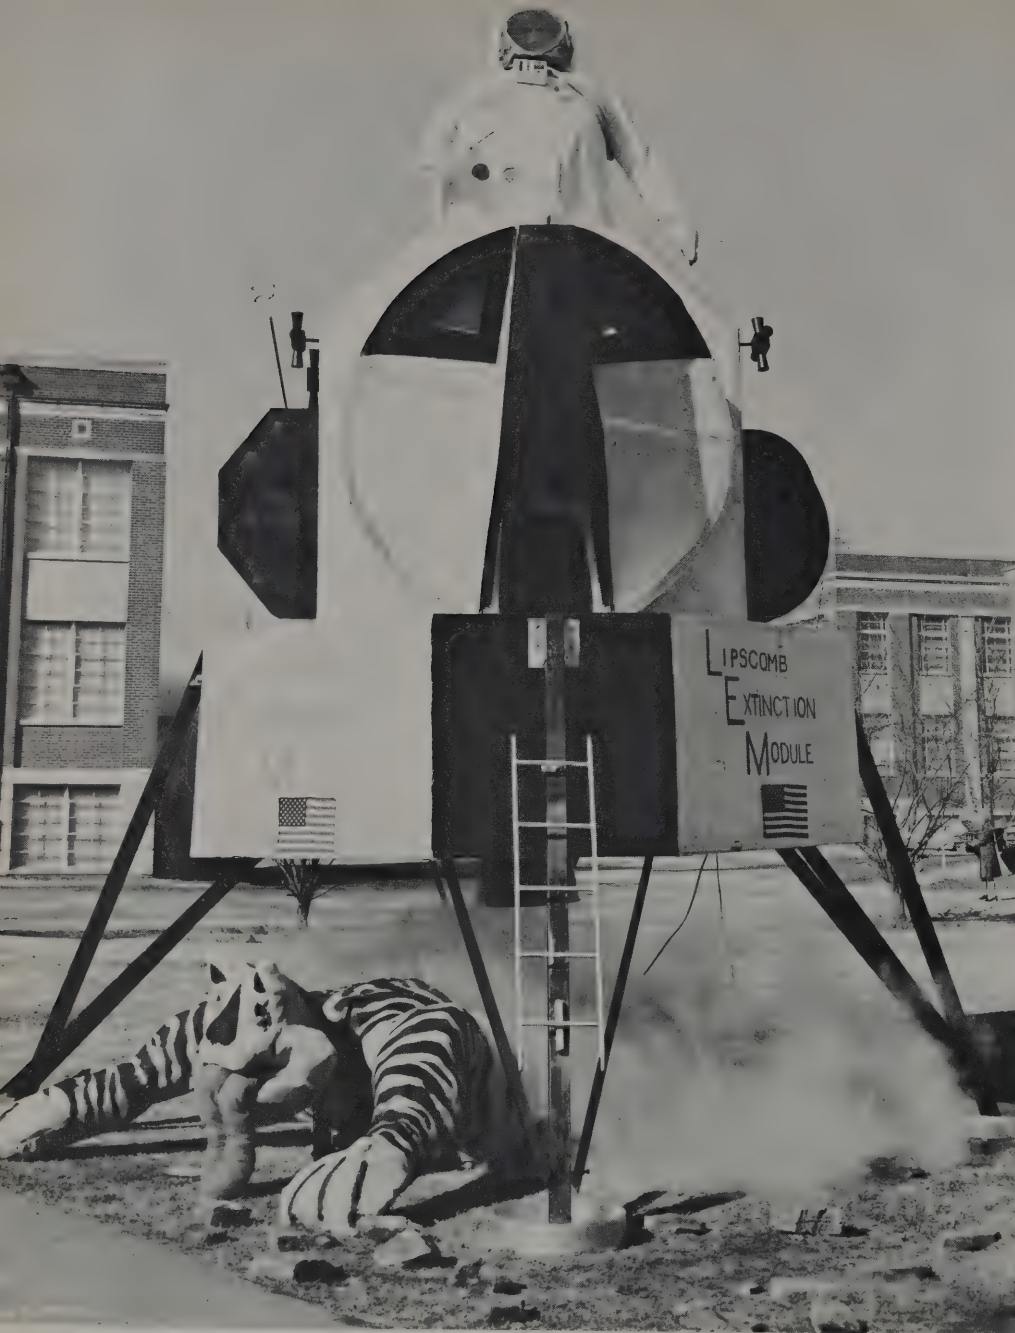

An enjoyable, memorable day by all involved was the general consensus of the capacity crowd as they slowly exited stately old McQuiddy Gymnasium for more reunions and the events of the evening.

For the first time in more than twenty years as President, Dr. Athens Clay Pullias was unable to crown the Queen and, in his absence, Vice-President Willard Collins (left) officiated.

Soon-to-be-Queen Peggy Lynn confers with one of her royal attendants at a picture session on Homecoming morning.

Sigma Phi, Psi Alpha, and Delta Nu captured first place in the Homecoming Project competition by constructing a full-scale replica of the Apollo Lunar Module and "landing" it on a University of the South Tiger.

'Extinction

For alumni, Homecoming is a time of relaxation, fondly remembered companionships, and delightful reunions with long-separated friends. But for members of Lipscomb's twenty-one social clubs, the approach of the Big Game signals the time for the start of construction of increasingly sophisticated projects to spur the spirits of the team.

Desiring to equalize the competition, the Interclub Council limited the cost of the 1970 projects to $100. But first place winners, Sigma Phi, Psi Alpha, and Delta Nu dug a little deeper into their imagination and constructed a take-off on the Apollo Lunar Excursion Module. Standing more than fourteen feet off the ground, the "Lipscomb Extinction Machine" was a full size model of the original and weighed more than two tons.

Delta Sigma, Beta Tau, Alpha Chi Delta, and Sigma Iota Delta "Shut Out the Tigers" from their twenty-five foot ark and won third place.

Second place in the contest was claimed by a Bison who continually butted a Tiger up a goal post and into the basket.

Machine' Heads Club Project Winners

'Welcome to the Festival of Hearts

Summer is the traditional time for the circus to come to town, but for Lipscomb the date was early February and the occasion was Homecoming Night. Before the Big Top had folded its tents at the annual Festival of Hearts Pageant that evening, spectators had had not only their share of thrills and chills, but also a parade of lovely heart-stoppers had competed for six coveted positions as Campus Beauties.

From twelve beautiful finalists came the eventual winners: Andrea Boyce, Melinda Cockerham, Sharlett Oates, Kathy Roland, Teresa Brewer Scott, and Janie Yates. All were judged not only on natural beauty, but also on their poise, appearance, and carriage.

Donna Huckaby, D. J. Smith, and Linda Ramsey, a popular campus trio, displayed their vocal wares during the Pageant.

Up, Up, and Over

Despite the fact that the gymnastics team had only four regular members, the squad again proved to be among the most outstanding in the South. Tutored by nationally-recognized coach, Tom Hanvey, the Gymnasts were led by All-American Steve Bohringer, who once again this winter, travelled to the NAIA Nationals and managed a ninth place finish in the competition. The size of the team prevented any dual home matches, but in foreign competition, the squad recorded an undefeated slate.

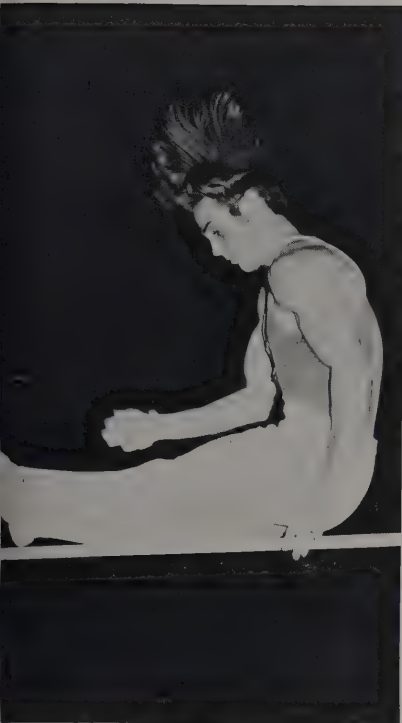

In commenting on the season, Coach Hanvey speculated, "Outstanding high school gymnasts who measure up to Lipscomb's admissions code are increasingly difficult to find, but with the upsurge in gymnastics on the secondary level, we're confident we can maintain our level of accomplishment in the coming seasons."

Jerry Cover slices off the pivot in an intramural basketball contest that held all the excitement and thrills of a Bison intercollegiate game.

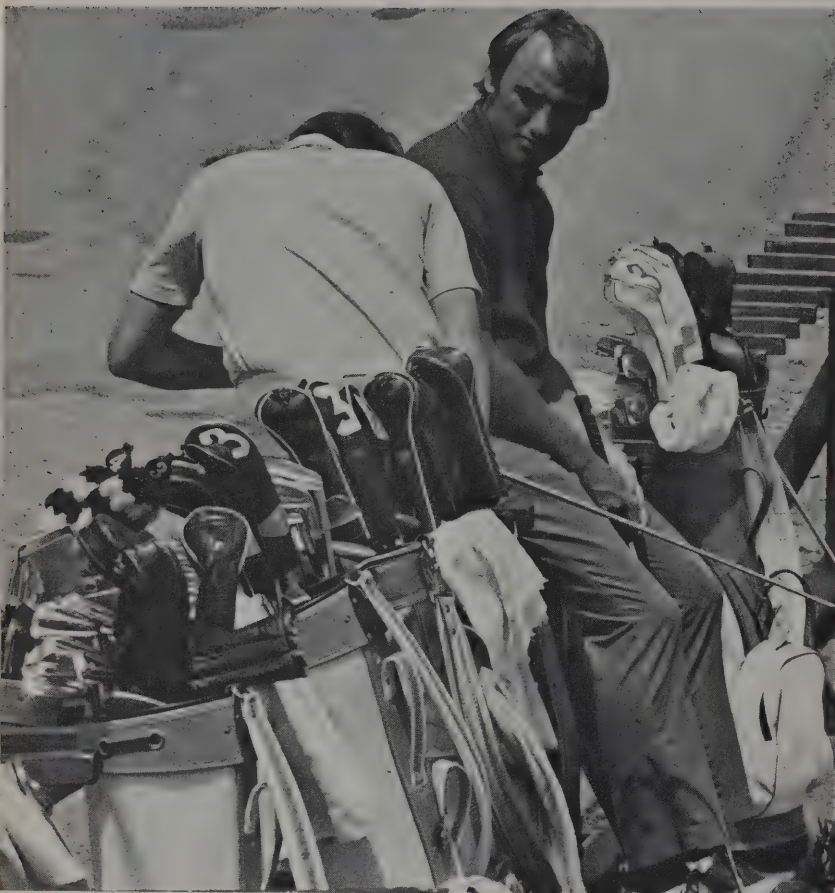

The powderpuff football competition, won by Kappa Chi social club, drew the largest spectator crowds of the season as the male population of the campus turned out in droves to watch the women block, tackle, and throw a few passes.

Under the capable direction of Fessor Boyce, the intramural sports program again this year drew record numbers of participants. Every major sport was included in the list of possibilities from which any student could participate. Basketball, powderpuff football for the distaff set, tennis, golf, and even ping pong encompassed the sports calendar. More than 40% of the student body signed up to be divided into permanent teams.

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, golf, girls, baseball, love. . . .

When the winter winds finally cease to howl along about the last week in March and the sun begins to make regular appearances in the newly painted azure sky, the world seems to come alive with the beauty of birth and the wonder of the Creation. As the thermometer inches its way toward heights not seen since autumn's reluctant exit six months before, the campus joins in concert with the earth to revive the joy of living and the world knows that it is . . . spring.

In the Spring...

Dugan and Co. Make Good On the Sandlot Circuit

Spring appeared to present a rosy picture for Lipscomb's "diamondmen" as they began their ambitious 56 game schedule with a swing through Florida during spring vacation.

"We ought to win at least 30 games and perhaps 35 if we can get a break in the weather," said Bison mentor Ken Dugan.

One thing was for certain: the potential and the material was there, as the team lost only two seniors, only one of which was a regular starter, from a 1970 squad that had a 29-13 record and made a trip to the NAIA District 24 tournament.

Returning were six lettermen who boasted over .300 averages: Dave Lindsey, Mark Massey, Jim Minnick, Ted Jamison, Steve Garner, and Farrell Gean; and a host of others who were in the .290 range.

Pitching prospects were also good with Garner, 8-0; Ronnie Albright, 4-2; and Butch Stinson, 6-3 all returning for a second year. Also, the Bison freshmen, who marked a milestone in recruiting, were expected to fill some holes.

Hopes were high for All-American honors going to Lindsey, a catcher, and Stinson, if they could maintain their previous years' performances.

Coach Ken Dugan, beginning his twelfth year at the helm of the Bisons, established two goals for his 1971 team: to win 35 games and to get to the NAIA Nationals.

The Bisons made a regular practice of crossing homeplate. As the season closed, the team was nearing a school record for most runs scored.

Tennis

Led by a new coach, Peggy Roberts, and a host of returning veterans, the women's tennis team set out to take up where they left off last spring when they finished as the runner-up squad in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Tournament. Joy McMeen (left) and Paula Hembree returned to hold down the numbers one and two positions, while Nancy Boyce, Marcia Corley, Pat Byers and Lois Mead rounded out the top six.

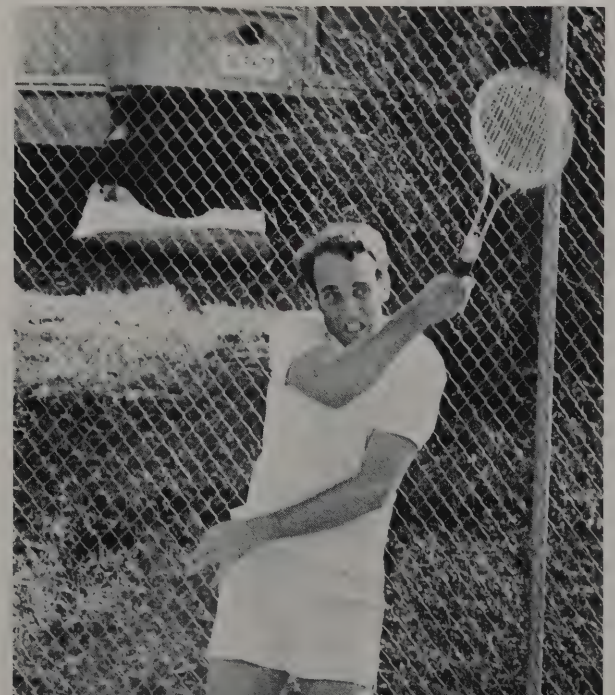

The men, coached by Dr. Robert Hooper, expected to devote 1971 to the rebuilding process as they lost their number one man from last year's team. Paced by Tom Haddock, a returning letterman, the team showed unexpected early season strength, but prospects for the remainder of the spring were dimmed when Gary Jerkins, the number two singles ace, injured his knee and was lost for the season.

Linksmen Roar to Fast Start

Although hit by the loss through graduation of All-American competitor Bill Castle and several other linksmen, the Bison Golf squad again posted an enviable record. Led by Dick Morris, a competitor Coach Ralph Samples hoped would succeed Castle on the All-American squad, the team had hopes as the spring matured that they would be able to make a third consecutive trip to the NAIA national tournament in June. Early season competition seemed to prove the hopes feasible as the Bisons roared away to an undefeated slate through the first three weeks of play.

Coach Ralph Samples tutored the team along with the able assistance of Dr. Walt Rogers.

James Mitchell and Sandy Saunders (above) and David Craig (below) composed three legs of the Bison's mile relay team.

A well-balanced track team, featuring both veteran and rookie performers, held forth a bright promise for the 1971 spring season. By mid-season, the Bisons had already re-written the school record book in a number of events and only narrowly missed others. Tutored by Russ Combs, a stand-in for regular coach Steve Barron who was serving six months of active duty with the Marines, the harriers compiled a respectable record of having lost only one dual meet against such tough competition as Tennessee State, Western Kentucky, Tennessee Tech, and Middle Tennessee. Outstanding individual performances by Louis Allen, Ron Cope, Fred Walker, and others highlighted the team's early season efforts. As May approached, the Bisons had their sights set on sending as many men as possible to the NAIA Nationals in June.

'Death of a Salesman' Tops Drama Season

The Drama Department, to close out a highly successful season, presented Arthur Miller's highly acclaimed tour de force, "Death of a Salesman," in mid-April. The production, under the tutelage of Dr. Jerry Henderson, starred Sandra Hughes and Eddie Lenoir as the embattled Loman couple. Playing to capacity audiences during its week-run, the production accurately interpreted the highly successful Broadway drama and is a strong candidate as Best Play in this year's Totty Awards.

Chip Arnold lent strength to the cast of "Death of a Salesman" as he gave a stirring portrayal of Biff Loman, the misunderstood son.

Sandra Hughes and Eddie Lenoir (right) held starring roles in the spring production of "Death of a Salesman."

Graduation is a time not just of endings but also of beginnings, for one finds throughout life that for every door which closes, another opens.

And so June finally comes. For the majority, it is the signal to go home, to seek out the warm rays of the summer sun, to learn by doing rather than by listening.

But for half a thousand, the first week in June signals something completely different. It marks the end, for most, of endless classroom lectures, long nights spent wrestling with procrastination, the joy and freedom of being half way between the child and the man. It marks the beginning of a new phase; it is the dawning of the age of responsibility for each individual. Whether one finds he must wrestle with the problems of a new job or the conflicts of a new marriage or both, June is the time of beginnings.

On a hot Saturday evening early in the month, rarely used black robes appear. Professors take on all the cherished dignity of their time-honored positions. Students find a non-congruency between their own academic garments and the brightly-striped shirts and dresses underneath just waiting to be liberated from childhood.

The names are called, the speeches given, the tears shed, the farewells exchanged and for the world's newest Hope for the Future it is . . . Graduation.

ADDENDUM

So it must end. The Golden Anniversary Edition of the David Lipscomb College BACKLOG.

What do you say when something you love and hate and fear and adore very much draws to a close? That it was a nice try? That it had a good message? That you and the school and the world are better for having made it all the way to the last page of The Book?

You say thanks because without Linda and Ernie, Jim, Ken, and Paula, Lee and Dawn, Deby, Hutch, Denny, and ad infinitum, there would be no book to end.

You say that it was a horrible experience, because it was. But you also say that it was a wonderful experience, because it was that too. You say that you loved every minute of it, because now you do. And you say that you wouldn't trade those twelve months for anything in the world, because now you wouldn't.

You say that what is written on these pages is not written on paper but, rather, on your heart and maybe, someday, on your life. You know that everyone won't understand because they never do. But you hope that maybe somewhere, sometime, one person will thumb through the book and realize that there's more to it than just words and ink and cardboard.

You want to say all those things you didn't know how to say before. You'd like to take the world by the lapels and say, Look, you're in a mess and the only way you're ever going to get straight is for us to learn to touch and to feel and to love again. You want to make somebody realize that this year at this school in this city on this planet in this Universe wasn't too important after all.

You try to say, Hey, you who just hit that home run, or you who just starred in that play, or you who just edited that yearbook: you're not so big. You're just one equal part of three billion and just because you don't like the color of that man's skin or the length of his hair or the way he talks doesn't mean you're any better than he is.

But, in the end, all you say is that this year and what we said here and what we thought here and what we learned here are only a prospectus. They are a prelude to tomorrow. And maybe, just maybe, if we have learned that we're all brothers, this year will become a prelude to a New World.
